Lankan trade unions remain opposed to Adani Group investment in Colombo Port

Sri Lankan port trade unions on Thursday said they were not convinced with the proposal of Indian multinational company Adani Group and its partners buying 49 per cent stake in the Eastern Container Terminal (ETC) of Colombo Port, a day after President Gotabaya Rajapaksa met them to explain the need for foreign funding.

Maersk sees little change in tight shipping supply near term

Demand for ocean shipping services is likely to remain unusually high and supply will remain tight for some time as shippers and carriers adapt to shifts in supply chains driven by the coronavirus pandemic, according to Robbert van Trooijen, senior vice president for Latin America and the Caribbean at the Maersk Line container shipping unit of A.P. Moller-Maersk A/S.

Industry confusion over plan for new TSA air cargo security regime

Preparations for a mandate to screen all cargo moved on freighter aircraft this summer got off to a rocky start in the US this week when the Transportation Security Agency (TSA) presented a plan to allow shippers to secure cargo on their own premises to bypass screening at airports. Having eschewed the traditional approach of developing rules in discussions with industry stakeholders, the agency proposal this week left many puzzled.

Why empty shipping containers are piling up in Australia?

Unfortunately, right now, empty container parks and empty container holding spaces in New South Wales have become chock-a-block with empty boxes. Even port precincts have become extra-busy and port operator NSW Ports has quite rightly imposed control measures to preserve safety. Empty container management is also becoming an issue elsewhere around Australia.
